IMPORTANT

Political contributions are not deductible for Income Tax purposes.

Pennsylvania law requires political committees to use their best efforts to collect and report the name, mailing address, occupation, name of employer, date and amount donated from contributors.

Pennsylvania law prohibits contributions to a political committee from ...

- any national or state bank
- any corporation incorporated under the laws of this state or any other state or foreign country, except those formed primarily for political purposes or as a political committee
- any unincorporated association, except those formed primarily for political purposes or as a political committee

The aforementioned entities may still contribute to a political committee under certain guidelines as outlined by Pennsylvania law. See <http://www.dos.state.pa.us/campaignfinance> for information.
